

TOP TEN Halloween Pet Safety Tips

1. CANDY As much as your dog or cat may beg for some of your Halloween candy, always remember that chocolate - especially dark chocolate - can be deadly to pets. Candy containing xylitol, an artificial sweetener, can also be poisonous. And, as with young children, hard candy is a choking hazard. Keep candy in a safe place that pets can't reach. When buying treats for your trick-or-treaters, buy some special dog and cat treats for your four-legged spooky friends, too!
2. CANDY WRAPPERS Swallowing foil and cellophane candy wrappers can be as harmful as the candy. Pets may choke on them or they may cause an intestinal blockage.
3. CANDLES Lit candles in pumpkins and candlesticks can easily be knocked over by a curious cat or wagging tail, causing singed whiskers, a severely burned paw or tail or a dangerous fire.
4. ELECTRIC CORDS Keep wires and cords from electric lights and other decorations out of reach of your pets. If chewed, your pet could experience damage to his mouth, or receive a possibly life-threatening electrical shock.
5. PET COSTUMES Some pets actually enjoy dressing up for Halloween. Others prefer their "birthday suits" or a simple festive bandana. Monitor pets in costume for tight fitting elastic and chewing. Beware of small bells and other small, dangling costume parts which may a danger if ingested. Masks need large eye holes so pets can see well peripherally. A normally calm dog may get snippy if he feels threatened by not seeing well around him.
6. STRANGE PEOPLE Even the friendliest dog may react with fear or aggression to a child or adult in costume and prefer to stay home instead of joining you for trick-or-treating. The last thing you need is a law-suit after what should be a fun night for all.
7. FRONT DOOR Beware of your pet darting out the door during trick-or-treat hours. Keep them safe in another room or in their kennel.
8. PARTIES Too many strangers, loud noises and music can be scary and stressful for pets. Some at the party may think it's funny to let a pet drink alcohol but it can kill them. A begging pet may eat too many people treats and put a quick end to the party by vomiting or requiring an emergency visit to the veterinarian. Keep your pet in a room where they won't be disturbed and check on them once in a while to let them know everything is fine.
9. ID TAGS Make sure your pet always has proper identification. If your pet somehow escapes or becomes lost, it helps ensure their safe return home.
10. BEWARE Unfortunately, some people use Halloween as an excuse to abuse animals. Take precautions to keep your pet safe from the real ghouls, too!
